Mr. Lloyd:

1. You will recall that last January John Clarke asked Colonel White to take a look at the idea of getting rid of some of our Military details (because they soak up slots) in favor of requisitioning services from the Military on a reimbursable basis.

2. I have gone into this, as reflected by the attachments, and I believe further pursuit of this objective will prove fruitless for the following reasons:

a. We lack a means of controlling the selection of individuals with reimbursable arrangements simply because the Military reserve the right of final selection.

b. Reimbursable individuals are not subject to CIA security processing.

c. Agency personnel are not permitted to command reimbursables and, thus, we lose flexibility in utilizing such individuals.

3. Particularly in view of the fact that the Budget Division has held the attached since 27 January, I believe John Clarke will consider the action which we have taken enough to indicate that we ought to drop the matter. If you agree, please return to me for file.

MEMORANDUM FOR: Budget Division

ATTENTION : Mr.

SUBJECT : Utilization of Military Personnel by CIA

1. For two or three weeks I have examined with the feasibility of having the Military Services perform certain of our functions as a reimbursable service rather than a Military detail to CIA which utilizes ceiling spaces.

2. The two attachments reflect the slots considered. The study so far indicates generally that the loss of flexibility in commanding and utilizing Military personnel when we obtain them on a reimbursable basis together with the Military Services' refusal to permit CIA security processing of such individuals makes any large-scale ceiling savings unlikely.

3. A perusal of the attached documents in the light of security requirements as stated by indicates that no ceiling savings will be realized from this effort except for a few now under further study within the Clandestine Services. The status of each category of such personnel is shown in memorandum.

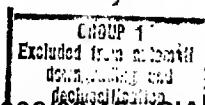

4. When you have examined the attached, would you please return to me as I do not have copies.
